Accreditation Self Study Process Starting

Every six years the College applies to the Accrediting Commission for the Community and Junior Colleges, Western Association of Schools and Colleges, for reaffirmation of our accreditation. To do this, the College writes a self study in which we show how we meet all of the standards put forward by the Commission. The Commission then sends a team to visit us on site and check that we have done all that we have said. Our next site visit will be during fall semester 2013. The self study process takes almost two academic years, so we are starting now.

The first step, now underway, is to form a steering committee to guide the process. Donna Bestock, Dean of Social Science/Creative Arts, and Fermin Irigoyen, Academic Senate President and Professor of Communications, will be the steering committee co-chairs. Rob Johnstone, Dean of Planning, Research and Institutional Effectiveness, is the Accreditation Liaison Officer. Others on the steering committee will include representatives from each of the four shared governance constituencies, faculty, classified staff, students, and administration. Each will have a specific function, such as resource manager, editor, or co-chair of one of the Standard Committees. In all, there will be seventeen members of the committee, chosen to broadly represent us all. Members of the steering committee will attend a training session, put on by the commission. We hope to have all members of the steering committee approved by their appointing bodies by the end of September.

The next step will be to identify members of the various writing teams. We hope you will consider being one of those writers! You would work with a great team of your colleagues and learn in great depth about the College. And then there is the chocolate. More about that later. If you would be interested in joining this effort, please let us know by contacting your shared governance body, Academic Senate, Classified Council or CSEA, or the Associated Students of Skyline College. Or you may contact either of the co-chairs.

WE HEAR YOU SKYLINE COLLEGE!

The Pacific Café at Skyline College has implemented some changes this fall semester as a result of the many comments and suggestions we have received from students, faculty and staff.

The Daily Menu has expanded significantly. Look for the following new items now:

- Sweet Potato Fries (delicious...and good for you, too!)
- The Boom-Boom Burger
- Crispy Chicken tender sandwich
- Chipotle Turkey Sandwich
- Farmers Market Pizza
- Hawaiian Calzone
- Taqueria Style Tacos
- Carne Asada
- Fresh Cut French Fries; never frozen, no preservatives or additives and they are trans-fat free!
- Prepackaged Salads for customers on the go
- New Grab and Go Sandwiches from Panini Time. These are gourmet sandwiches made fresh daily.
- New Juice Station-natural juice dispenses added at the beverage station that has been a real hit with staff and students. It has been described by Skyline College Bookstore Manager, Kevin Chak as "it's an AWESOME healthy afternoon pick me up without the caffeine".

In addition to the items we have added above, we are working with the Skyline Facilities team to bring the power necessary to operate a Panini Grill in the café which will allow us to make freshly made Panini's daily.

Please continue to share your feedback directly with Hugo Ramos who manages the Pacific Café. You can also feel free to share your thoughts with Rick McMahon, owner of Pacific Dining by sending him an e-mail at mcmahonr@smccd.edu.

If you have any questions about the operation of the café, please feel free to contact Vice Chancellor Tom Bauer who manages the auxiliary operations for the District including the Bookstore, food service, concession and vending. You can reach Tom via e-mail at bauert@smccd.edu or by calling X6782.

Look for additional information in Skyline Shines about the coffee concession and some additional changes to the cafeteria servery as well as the dining area itself!

The Learning Center Reaches Out

Student empowerment is the foundation of the Learning Center's (TLC) philosophy, and to that end the TLC continues the means to reach out to members of the Skyline College community by visiting classes and leading TLC tours to inform students and faculty about the many resources offered. The TLC has hit the ground running this semester visiting over 60 classes, facilitating tours, and supporting students with tutoring and workshops amounting to over 3,000 student contacts in the first four weeks of school!

We would like to continue our outreach efforts on campus and invite instructors, departments and divisions to contact us for TLC information or to schedule a presentation or tour of the TLC by one of our staff members. Please feel free to contact John Saenz at saenzj@smccd.edu to schedule a visit or a tour. Thank you to those that have helped students connect with academic support in the Learning Center.

Former Trojan Makes it to the Major Leagues

Justin Christian is the first Skyline College baseball player to make it to the Major Leagues. Justin played for Skyline College during the 1999-2000 academic year, and received his Associate's Degree in the Spring of 2000. Upon his departure from Skyline College, he attended Auburn University and Southeast Missouri State University on a full athletic scholarship for his final two years of college baseball. During his senior year at Southeast Missouri, Justin was named an All-American by three different organizations recognizing the best Division I college baseball players in the nation. He received his Bachelor's Degree in 2005 from Southeast Missouri State. After college, Justin signed with the New York Yankees in 2004, and made his Major League debut in 2008.

He is currently at the Major League level with the San Francisco Giants. Justin is one of many successful student athletes for current Head Coach Dino Nomicos, who has had 13 players sign professional contracts, and produced 16 All-Americans.

Culture of Inquiry: Student Success

How well do we respond to the needs of our students, the community, business, industry, the governments and accrediting agencies?

This article is a small attempt to encourage us to have a critical perspective when considering student outcome indicators. Scholars such as Gloria Ladson-Billings, Lisa Delpit, and Amanda Lewis have contributed a great deal of literature urging educators to re-conceptualize our notions of student achievement gap. They bring into focus the student equity implications and encourage us to look at the information and ourselves through an equity lens within the framework of critical race theory.

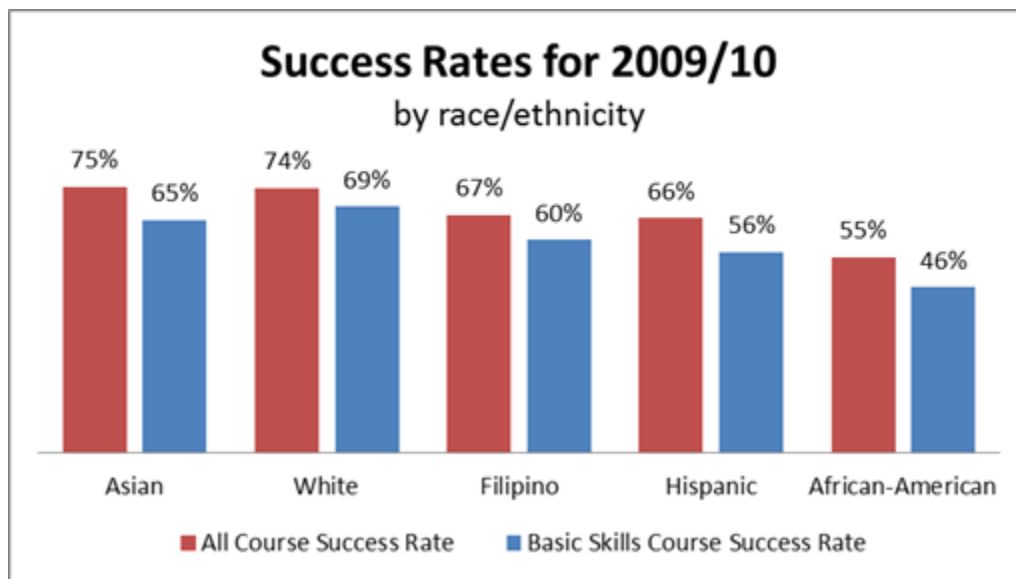

In last week's Skyline Shines, I discussed the All Course Success Rate and Basic Skills Course Success Rate measures of the Balanced Scorecard

(<http://www.skylinecollege.edu/facstaff/plans/BalancedScorecard.html>).

Recall that for all Skyline courses, success rates slightly improved over time and in 2009/10 our success rate was 69 percent –one percentage point below our benchmark of 70 percent. For basic skills courses, there was a more dramatic improvement over time and in 2009/10 our success rate was 62 percent—seven percentage points above our benchmark of 55 percent. Furthermore, I posited a set of questions to promote a conversation around these outcomes and their implications regarding the benchmarks we have for our students and how we think about our work towards increasing levels of student success.

I also briefly discussed the need to think about these outcomes when broken down by ethnicity. In the figure below, you can see that when looking at data for the 2009/10 year for Asian, white, Filipino, Hispanic, and African-American Skyline College students, there are various takeaways. First, success rates for all Skyline College courses are higher than rates for basic skills courses for all groups.

Second, we were successful in helping Asian and white students to meet the benchmarks set for both measures. Third, we were less successful with Hispanic and African-American students. At least one-third of Hispanic and African-American students are not successful in either measure. Last, with regard to African-American students, we are not successful in helping them succeed to meet the benchmark for either measure, and the 46 percent success rate in basic skills courses indicates that African-Americans are not successful in over half of the basic skills courses in which they enroll.

What other observations do you see? Are there other comparisons between/across groups that catch your attention? How does this reality relate to our work in promoting student success and student equity? How does this influence our work moving forward? By asking ourselves these questions and thinking about implications on individual, departmental, and institutional levels, we can continue to promote positive change for our practice and will improve the learning outcomes of our students.

If you have questions, concerns or ideas about this topic, please feel free to contact Rob Johnstone or David Ulate.

I would like to thank Rob Johnstone and Dave Ulate for providing the data that allowed me to write this analysis and pose these questions to our college community. These ideas do not represent a position of the Research and Planning Office. Indeed their role is to provide the data. These ideas and questions are being posed from the President's Office with the good intent of engaging this conversation, pursuing student equity, and supporting the faculty and staff in their efforts to serve the college community. I am excited about the ideas and responses that may be generated by these articles.

Written by Regina Stanback Stroud – Thanks to the Research and Planning Office for contributing the data.

Green Parking at Skyline College

Skyline College's commitment to sustainability can be seen in many aspects of the college – including curriculum, programs, and construction/modernization designs. Additionally, the recent changes to parking lot K are two good examples of our commitment to decreasing harmful vehicle emissions to the environment. There are now spaces designated for fuel efficient vehicles and car pools. Faculty, staff and students whose vehicles meet the criteria or who have the appropriate permit issued by the Public Safety Department will be able to park in the spaces without being ticketed.

Fuel Efficient Vehicles

- In order to park in these spaces vehicles must be listed as LEED Certified low emissions vehicles and must be registered with the Public Safety Department at Skyline College. More information regarding these standards will be forthcoming as the registration process is finalized.
- You must possess a valid student or staff parking permit and have it displayed in your vehicle.
- If you drive a secondary vehicle that is not on the list you may not use your supplementary permit with it and park in the fuel efficient space that day.
- If your vehicle does qualify, please bring your vehicle registration to the Public Safety Department and you will be issued a DPS Fuel Efficiency dash board parking permit that will allow you to park in any of the allotted fuel efficiency vehicle spaces.
- Please note that parking in the fuel efficient spaces is based on a first come first serve basis and there is no guarantee of a preferred space.

Car/Van Pool

Skyline College is starting a new a new Car/Van Pool Parking Program this semester. Students, faculty and staff who wish to participate in the Car/Van Pool Parking Program may pick up an application at the Skyline College Public Safety Office in building 6after October 10, 2011.

Here is how it works! A minimum of 3 enrolled students are needed for the application process. To qualify for the program, each student on the application must have paid for a semester or dual semester student parking permit(s). Each student must be enrolled in at least one class at Skyline College and again, there has to be a minimum total of THREE students on the application. For faculty and staff a minimum of three riders are required. An application that allows one to designate the members of the carpool must be completed in order to receive a permit from public safety.

The Public Safety Department is currently limited to 12 Car/Van pool parking permits per semester. Each permit is only valid for the semester it is issued. The Public Safety Department will start taking applications on the first day of every new semester. Permits are issued on a first come first served basis after submitting a fully completed permit application to the Public Safety Department. Car/Van Pool parking regulations are available with the application.

Shared Governance Notes

Board of Trustees Discussion

At the recent Board of Trustees meeting a rich discussion regarding student participation in shared governance was engaged by Student Trustee Barry Jointer and the Board. While the discussion was primarily focused on shared governance at CSM, we were all reminded of the importance of being proactive and going above and beyond to maintain communication. Here are a things to keep in mind.

1. As a member or chair of a committee, communicate the committee meeting dates, times and location to the members and constituent leaders. You may also invite attendance of the faculty, staff and students who may be interested in particular topics.
2. To enhance student participation maintain open communication with the office of Student Activities. Amory Cariadus, Director of Student Activities can be of service to you and the students should you have trouble obtaining student participation.
3. If you notice that a particular constituency is not able to consistently participate, investigate to determine if a change in location, date, time or frequency will support their participation.
4. Post your agendas and minutes on your governance sites and publicize the link.
5. Post hard copy agendas on appropriate bulletin boards.
6. Be sure to share the rewards that may come from participation (benefits to programs, constituents, influence in decisions made, etc.)

The compendium of committees can be found at <http://www.skylinecollege.edu/facstaff/GovCommittees/collegecouncil/compendium.html>

TRiO Partners with Transfer Center for TAG Info

On Friday, September 2nd the TRiO program, in collaboration with Jacqueline Escobar, Director of the Transfer Center, facilitated a Transfer Agreement Guarantee (TAG) workshop to TRiO students. The TAG workshop is the first in a series of transfer-related workshops that TRiO is offering its students this Fall semester. During the workshop, over 20 TRiO students received an overview of the UC TAG Program's eligibility criteria as well as university-specific requirements. Students were informed of significant changes affecting the UC TAG Program and important deadlines that must be considered if interested in applying for TAG this September. In addition, students were able to view and learn how to complete the online UC TAG application.

The workshop was a tremendous success among TRiO students, who were actively engaged asking questions as information was presented. Special thanks to Jacquie Escobar for facilitating this educational workshop.

TRiO Demystifies the Associate Degree

To be eligible for TRiO, students must have the goal of completing an Associate Degree from Skyline College and transfer to a four-year university within a four-year time frame. This semester, the TRiO program is conducting a series of workshops to help TRiO students successfully accomplish these academic goals. On Friday, September 16th, the TRiO program facilitated a workshop to help demystify the Associate Degree among TRiO students.

During the workshop, students received an overview of the benefits that result from graduating with an Associate Degree, such as higher earnings, increased job opportunities, and a greater sense of personal satisfaction and self-efficacy. In addition, TRiO students learned about Skyline College's graduation, general education, and major requirements necessary for graduation. Important academic concepts, such as degree applicable units and catalog rights were reviewed in depth. Photos taken by Nohel Corral and article submitted by Jessica Lopez
