Resources for Zero Cost Alternatives

Zero textbook cost means that students do not incur any costs for purchasing course material. However, zero-cost to the students does not guarantee zero cost to the institution, ie. subscription databases, library equipment loans. To create a course that is at zero-cost to students, course instructors can use many platforms including Open Educational Resources; Open Access, Creative Commons, and public domain materials; along with resources owned or licensed by the Library.

- Open Educational Resources (OERs) are free learning materials that are licensed, often under a Creative Commons license, to allows users to retain copies of OER content, as well as reuse, revise, remix and redistribute the content. OERs include textbooks, videos, tests, entire courses, course modules, and syllabi.
- Open Access (OA) license allows users to have immediate, unrestricted, digital access to content published under that OA license.
- Public Domain works may be used without seeking the copyright holder's permission or paying a license fee because the content owner's exclusive intellectual property rights to that content may have been expired, forfeited, waived, and/or deemed inapplicable.

To view a list of open educational resources including repositories, textbooks, and courses, visit OER Resources page. To incorporate library resources in your course materials, contact a librarian or visit the Library's Faculty Services page.

Below are some examples of open access, public domain, Creative Commons licensed works.

Books

- BookBoon: BookBoon provides textbooks in Finance, Management and Organization, Marketing and Media, and Strategy. The books can be downloaded for free but do contain some minimal advertising.
- ManyBooks: A digital library of more than 29,000 ebooks on various topics.
- Manuscript and Rare Books: This site holds 900 illuminated manuscripts, 1,250 of the first printed books (ca. 1455 – 1500), and an important collection of post-1500 deluxe editions, this extraordinary collection chronicles the art of the book over more than 1,000 years. The collection is from all over the world, and from ancient to modern times. It features deluxe Gospel books from Armenia, Ethiopia, Byzantium, and Ottonian Germany, French and Flemish books of hours, as well as masterpieces of Safavid, Mughal and Ottoman manuscript illumination.
- National Academies Press: Most books published by the National Academies Press can be downloaded for free in PDF format. Just find the book you want, bypass the print price, and click the "Download Free PDF" button. This site requires that you provide a name and e-mail address.
