

NOOSHAN SHEKARABI

I am an Iranian immigrant residing in the United States since 1984. I am fluent in my native language of Farsi (Persian). I am a full professor of political science and chair of the political science department at Santiago Canyon College in Orange, California. Both my undergraduate and graduate studies and degrees were completed at California State University, Fullerton. I am an author and a poet as well. I have also served as a political consultant for a number of Iranian news networks in California.

NOOSHAN SHEKARABI WORKS

Understanding American Government, 5th Edition, BVT Publishing 2005-Present

Seasons, Volumes I, II, and III, I-Universe Publishing 2008-Present

The Historical and Political Influence of Imperialism and Colonialism upon 21st Century China 2006/2007 Oxford University's Public Forum Policy Publications

The 2008 US Presidential Election: Why it Matters to You, Ashena Magazine 2008

In Pursuit of Honor: Iran's Post-Revolutionary Foreign Policy, (In progress) 2020-Present

Iranian Women in Academia in the Trump Era, Panelist for the University of California, Irvine Jordan Center for Persian Studies 2020

Why Women Write, Panelist for the University of Stockholm Center for Iranian Studies 2021

Racism and Sexism in Academia, Speaker/Consultant for the Global Village Network Iranian Television 2021

US/Iran Relations in the Biden Era, Speaker/Consultant for the Global Village Network Iranian Television 2021

The Women of the Iranian Revolution of 2022, Speaker/Panelist for the Oregon State University's College of Liberal Arts 2023